A Spy of the Zionist Regime Was Executed by the Islamic Revolutionary Court of Justice of Yazd
News Department - The person, who was spying for the Zionist regime in Yazd, was executed.

According to our correspondent, Rouhollah Bahramshahi, son of Goshtasb, was sentenced to death in the judgment of the Office of the Prosecution of the Islamic Revolutionary of Yazd, following the continuous and active efforts of the Office of the Prosecutor of the Islamic Revolution of Yazd.

[The case had to do with] the espionage of the Zionist regime and [Rouhollah Bahramshahi's] obtaining direct instructions from Israel, and the removal of foreign currency from the country by the National Assembly of the Baha'is to [turn over to] the Israeli usurper, and also membership in the organization of the perverse Baha'i sect and the creation of psychological warfare and propaganda.

The verdict was executed with the approval of the Supreme Court, on 6 Esfand 1363 [25 February 1985] in the Islamic Revolutionary Court of Justice.
