Baha'i Propaganda Activities in Hospitals

The spying activities of the Baha'i sect have taken on a new colour and form, of which attending Tehran's private hospitals and sitting in ambush for city patients and their families is an example.

Fars News Agency's cyberspace group, Rah-e Dana, quoting the Basij Medical Society, wrote, "It has been heard that Baha'i propaganda teams, in a comprehensive decision, have tested and [now] use their propaganda methods in various environments, such as rural activities, social development activities with a propagandistic, friendly approach, sports teams, students, creating non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and communication with neighbours."

According to reports, Baha'i propaganda teams attend specialized hospitals in Tehran to talk to patients from around the city, and, if necessary, provide financial assistance and suitable accommodation for the sick citizens of the city and then introduce them to the circles in the city, to attend briefings.

It is worth mentioning that covert propaganda is one of the tactics of the Baha'is in attracting people, which was made public in the message of the House of Justice on 26 June 2006 and is still on their organizational agenda. The sect's propaganda teams are affiliated with Israel.
